THE INTELLIGENCER.

WHEELING, MAY 4, 1897.

The Reds Again.

Last Saturday night about 5,000 persons calling themselves Anarchists assembled in New York under the red flag.
Among the legends carried on the transparencies was this striking one: "Down with capital."

It is unnecessary to stop to discuss what would be the condition of the country if capital were abolished. People who have even a little sense know that business is not conducted without capital.
But this point may be passed for the greater one involved in the demonstration.

Anarchism means an absence of government. Anarchists are persons who are trying to do away with government.
Anarchists in the United States are trying to do away with the government of the United States. Therefore they are persons hostile to the government of the United States.

For this reason they should not be allowed to march or assemble under the red flag of anarchism. If the Chicago Anarchists had been taken in hand in time there would have been no Haymarket slaughter.

The police of New York think they have the Anarchists of that city under complete control. It is better not to play with fire. It would be a good thing for New York and for the country if the Anarchists of that city were made to understand that they cannot parade and hold meetings as Anarchists.

Most of these men are of foreign birth, and a very good way to deal with them is to send them to the countries whence they came. In no case should there be any trifling with them. The law should deal with them with a firm hand, and if there be not law enough for this purpose it should be easy to get more. We owe no consideration to any man who is trying to overturn our form of government.

The Way They Worked It.

The appointment of a senate committee to investigate the operation of the civil service law has already justified itself, and the committee has hardly made a fair start. If the committee had unearthed nothing more than a single incident relative to two positions under an auditor in the interior department, it would have done a good piece of work.

It came out before the committee that Auditor Blackwell, who officiated in the interior department and perhaps is there still, put two Republicans, one of them a one-armed Union soldier, to make room for his father-in-law and his brother-in-law. The auditor was able to get these two members of his family in without subjecting them to the tortures of a civil service examination.

Then he caused them to be promoted to positions covered by the civil service act.

This showed not only that Auditor Blackwell was looking well to his own family, but it showed that he belongs to that valuable class of men who know how to do things. He brought his father-in-law and his brother-in-law in through a door which had no civil service bar on it, and then he put them in a stable that was bolted by the civil service law.

We have not had a better illustration of the way the thing has been working. It is reasonable to suppose that the senate committee will report that this is not a thoroughly good article of civil service reform. And wherever cases of this kind are found it is likely that the senate will recommend that the persons so worked in shall give way to the men whom they displaced.

Discoveries of this character may also lead to a very considerable overhauling of the civil service law. Nobody can maintain that such acts as those of Auditor Blackwell will improve the country's civil service.

What will Europe Do?

Europe can do what it pleases in the matter of the controversy between the Greeks and the Turks. The question of present interest is, What will Europe do?
Will it allow the war to go on until Greece shall be exhausted and utterly helpless? This is not probable.

The success achieved by the Turks in the war with Greece has already inflated that country with an arrogant pride that may give Europe more trouble than it has bargained for. This will make still more difficult the task of dealing with the Turks. Assuming that Europe will compel Greece and Turkey to bring the war to an end, what then?

Turkey is the victor and is entitled to some of the fruits of victory. What can she gain by her victory? Crete she has.
There is nothing for her to gain or lose in the matter of territory, for before the outbreak notice was served that neither country would be allowed to make any territorial acquisition. The most probable thing is a very good chunk of war indemnities.

How much money Greece will have to pay will be left to the powers, for Greece exists by the grace of, and under the guarantee of, the powers. So does Turkey exist by the grace of the powers, and if that country demand more than it is thought Greece is able to pay, the powers will bring the demand down to their idea of a proper basis.

Turkey may have hoped to possess herself once more of Greece, but this hope will not be realized. On the whole neither Greece nor Turkey can gain by the war.
The indemnity that will have to be paid to Turkey can hardly be enough to compensate that country for the money cost alone of whipping the Greeks.

Seeing the relation that both Greece and Turkey bear to Europe, it was a crime of the highest order for Europe to allow the war to begin. There must have been a selfish reason for allowing it to go ahead, or it would have been nipped in the bud.

What that selfish reason was may develop when Europe steps in as arbitrator and lays down the terms of peace. Then the diplomats who have been playing the game may shake some cards out of their sleeves.

The Weakness of Greece.

A great many military critics, no doubt all of them highly accomplished and very expert, are ready with a reason for the Greek failure to whip Turkey. This they find in the lack of ability in the Greek commanders. It is said that there is not a Greek officer fit to lead his troops against the Turks.

There is doubtless a good deal of truth in this, though it may not all be true.
The princes were put to the front because they were princes, not because they were skilled military commanders. If there were capable officers in Greece they have not had the opportunity to show what was in them. But this is not the main trouble.

While expert commanders might have done better with the Greek troops, the fact is that Turkey is too strong for Greece. The population of Turkey is nearly 28,000,000, the population of Greece is a little over 2,000,000. Turkey went into the war not only with more men but with more field pieces, more horses and more money. It would have been scarcely short of a miracle if Greece had defeated Turkey.

The skill of officers counts in war, but it would have been difficult to find commanders sufficiently skilled to make up for the great difference in fighting strength between Greece and Turkey.
Greece has been whipped because she got into war with a power too strong for her.
The military critics may put it in some other way, but this is the plain English of it.

Dryness at the State Capital.

The capital city of West Virginia has gone dry, all along of some sort of a row between the Charleston city council and the Kanawha county court. A public meeting has been held and, from the point of view of the speakers, dryness in the town is only too likely to be the forerunner of dry rot.

The Intelligence hopes it may not be so bad as this. Charleston is too fair a city to be numbered among the things that were. If it were not for a seeming mockery we would yield to the temptation to drain a bumper to Charleston's health and prosperity.

We might arrange to pipe it down from Wheeling. There is nothing dry-as-dust about Wheeling.

When the Democratic statesmen were putting the Wilson tariff bill in shape the lobbyists had no trouble to find out what was going on and to make commerce of their information. Things have changed, and the talent of the lobby is in despair.
From the point of view of that interest the Republican tariff bill is already a failure. Persons familiar with the Washington lobby say that its misery actually makes it an object of pity. Why not work the lobby in under the civil service law?

A Russian woman of little adventures in a New York newspaper that she would like an American husband. A man who says he is connected with one of the foreign legations in this country and has money adventures for an American wife.
Our fame must have got abroad. It is a fact that we Americans make the best husbands and the best wives in the world, when we are truly good.

It has been discovered that President McKinley's talent as a listener does not get in his way when he comes to do his thinking. He hears, and in his own time decides in his own way. There can be but one President at a time, and it is pretty well understood now that during the ensuing four years the office will be filled to the full by William McKinley.

In a fight with the Transvaal of course England would win, but it may be that England would have to whip more than the Transvaal. Germany, for example, shows a deep interest in the Dutch republic. And there are others. In the name of all that is grasping, hasn't England enough territory?

There are some current pleasantries about the failure of the administration to recognize Chauncy M. Depew. Well, if the President be looking for a good man for a high place Mr. Depew is that kind of man. He would not be a misfit in any position requiring learning, tact and character.

From Banker Spaulding's account of his way of running a bank he was entirely too innocent to be in that business. It is a wonder that some "rank outsider" did not get away with the Globe bank before Spaulding and his associates did. So innocent a man runs a great risk to be at large.

Between the famine and the plague India is said to have lost 230,000 lives, 200,- 000 by the former and 30,000 by the latter.
Since England administers affairs in India she should be ashamed to allow this chapter to be written in her history.

We congratulate Tennessee on having lived a hundred years and sincerely hope that her shadow may never grow less.
Also we hope that everybody who can will visit the Tennessee exposition, which has opened very creditably.

Baroness von Bulow, now in this country, says that she can't get the hang of our English "th" sound. Has the baroness never learned to lip love's name?

A grand-daughter of Queen Victoria leaves her princely husband. Whither is royalty drifting?

To-day the Intelligence prints the first of two articles on Ohio county genealogy. The second will appear to-morrow.

The subject has great interest for many persons hereabouts. The materials for these articles have been brought together with great care, involving a great deal of painstaking labor.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

How Fehr, the Late Charleston Editor, Closed His Engagement.
Charleston Mail: "Col." John L. Fehr, late manager of the West Virginian, has again gotten into trouble, and this time, will hardly escape a trip to Moundsville.

Before leaving here in the clandestine fashion which every one has heard about, Fehr distributed his personal checks and also checks of the Virginian indiscriminately, and the evening of his departure he issued checks on the West Virginian after he had severed his connection with that institution. It is hardly necessary to state that the paper was worthless and now there are numerous persons here mourning their faith in him.

Among the number is C. C. Harris, who was employed on the paper. Mr. Harris claims Fehr swindled him out of $50, and the Standard Installment Company also states that he gave them a worthless check in payment for a watch.

Both parties have sworn out warrants for his arrest and if he can be located, he will be returned here for trial.
Last night he was heard of in Washington and Chief Boyd will go for him as soon as his whereabouts are definitely known.

Fehr's career has been a black one and the sympathy extended to him by the state press in the notorious charge brought against him recently was like pearls thrown before swine. The Mail was criticized by some for giving the matter so much publicity, but if this paper had written other things concerning character, which come to our ears, and which are unquestionably true, many people in this city would have been richer and perhaps wiser.

The New Telephone.

To the Public:
I do not suppose that any Wheeling newspaper wishes to discriminate against any home enterprise that is for the public benefit, and which at the same time may be profitable to the persons engaged in it. I can understand why the Bell telephone company may object to any other company entering the field, and so we see that company doing its best through the press and in other ways to keep another telephone company from coming into this field. At the instance of that company the franchise previously granted us by council had conditions put into it for the sake of making it harder to raise capital to construct a competing system. Notwithstanding this we had almost completed arrangements to build the plant, when the money market got so that it was almost impossible to raise money for anything. There is a better condition now, and we have arranged to be ready to go ahead if council will give us a chance. It is not true that we have offered our franchise for sale.
That is a story invented by the enemy.
The simple truth is that until now we were unable to raise the necessary money. Now we have 600 subscribers who are impatiently awaiting the construction of the plant, and we are ready to construct it. This construction will give employment to a good deal of home labor. Our plans look to connections with about 15,000 independent telephones in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Western West Virginia. We shall begin to erect the plant as soon as the necessary surveys can be made and the material delivered on the ground. We shall give a first class service at a greatly reduced price. Can not the Bell company stand that? And is Wheeling to engage to protect that company against any and all opposition? All we ask is fair play for ourselves as citizens of Wheeling and for the whole body of the people. Other cities have competition in telephone service, why not Wheeling? There is no opposition except that inspired by the competition except that inspired by the company which has so long enjoyed the monopoly of this business, and all we ask is the privilege of burying our wires in the business section of the city and using the alleys in other sections for our poles.

Very truly,
W. D. JOHNSON,
Sec'y & Treas., Peoples Tel. Co.

The Boyless Town.

St. Nicholas.
A cross old woman of long age Declared that she hated noise:
"The town would be so pleasant, you know."
If only there were no boys."

She scolded and fretted about it till Her eyes grew heavy as lead, And, of a sudden, the town grew still.
For all the boys had fled.

And all through the long and dusty street There wasn't a boy in view;
The base ball lot where they used to meet Was a sight to make one blue;
The noise was growing so very base,
And the paths that the runners made;
For there wasn't a soul in all the place Who knew how the game was played.

The dogs were sleeping the livelong day—Why should they bark or leap?
There wasn't a whistle or call to play,
And so they could only sleep.
The pony neighed from his lonely stall,
And longed for saddle and rein;
And even the birds on the garden wall Chirped only a dull refrain.

The cherries rotted and went to waste—There was no one to climb the trees;
And nobody had a single taste Save only the birds and bees.
There wasn't a messenger boy—not one To speed such messengers as these;
If needs were, would their errands done, They sent for a messenger-man.

There was little, I ween, of frolic and mirth;
There was less of cheer and mirth;
The sad old town, since it lacked the boys,
Was the dreariest place on earth.
The poor old woman began to weep; She woke with a sudden scream:
"Dear me!" she cried, "I have been asleep, And oh, what a horrible dream!"
ROBERT CLARKSON TONGUE.

ONE OF TWO WAYS.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways.

The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles and suffering so painful to many that life is made miserable. The womb and the bladder were created for one purpose, and if left alone it is not liable to become diseased, except in rare cases.
When in position the womb is situated back of and very close to the bladder, and for that reason any distress, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passage is often mistaken, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided by paying a little attention to the condition of the urine (see pamphlet). The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kliner's Swamp-Root, the great kidney liver and bladder remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At drug stores fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a gencer and send your address to Dr.

proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

"THE FAIRMONT IDEA."

The High School of that Town Instituted a Commendable Movement a Year Ago.

In commenting a few days since on elaborate commencement exercises in our public schools and colleges, the Intelligencer referred to the commendable movement on foot in Virginia to discourage the toilet displays on such occasions, which are so often burdensome to poor people, whose children are on the programme. The following from the Fairmont Index correcting the impression the Intelligencer had that the movement in the direction of reform has not already started in this state, is published in this connection.

"The Intelligencer speaks as though a movement of this kind had never taken a start in this state when it says it would be gratifying to see 'some' reform in this state this year. The reform has when the Fairmont high school commencement exercises were held, last year that will doubtless be followed by many schools this year. The Gwynne class at the high school last year came from Fairmont's most representative families and the move they made can and will be followed by other schools to an advantage. The class consisted of Misses Amy Eliason, Winona, Linn, Dale Nugum, Minnie, Slater, and Messrs. Walter Boydston, Charles Weyman and Earl Morgan. The young ladies were all dressed in calico and the boys in plain suits.

Isn't this Delicous?
From "Short Stories," by Miss Helmar, (aged sixty.): "Ruby was a beauty—small blue eyes and yellow curls down to her waist. She was the plousette lady among the faties. Ruby's sister was named Tulip. She was not so pretty as Ruby, because her hair was brown and her eyes were black, but still she was pretty. Tulip was next to her sister in goodness. Ruby was never seen to frown nor Tulip either. When Ruby was dressed in her wedding clothes she looked very sweet. Her eyes were glowing with blueness and were shining brightly. When the fairy doctor came he said one had got scarlet fever, the other diphtheria, and the other typhoid fever. He told the fairy god-mother all about microbes and germs, and told her to boil the water. The fairy god-mother said she did not understand. If the germ had the fever, why didn't the fever kill the germ? And if the germ didn't have the fever, how could it give the fever? How could a thing give a thing it didn't have? The fairy doctor said:
'Nobody knows but God.'"

10-Days' Trip to Washington—Reduced Rates via B. & O.

Everybody expects to visit Washington some time; in fact, it is a duty every one owes to himself. What Rome was to every soldier of the empire, what Athens was to the Greek, Washington is and should be to every citizen of the United States—his glory, his pride, his inheritance. It belongs to him; all its magnificence, all its glory, all its fame, its public buildings, paintings, statuary, its monuments, its gardens, its libraries, its museums, its streets, its parks, and he ought once in a while to take a look at it. Congress now being in session will add additional interest to the city, already teeming with attractions.

The Baltimore & Ohio announces another of those popular excursions for Thursday, May 6. The tickets will be to secure a share of the truck business originating in South Carolina and points along the Southern Railway is attracting much interest among the Southern truck-growers, who are reported to be very friendly to the idea. The freight is transferred to the Baltimore & Ohio at the Potomac river by the Southern, and is carried across the river in carload lots without breaking bulk. It reaches the northern market by the Baltimore & Ohio, the Reading and the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

The really enormous increase in the shipments of fruit and vegetables from Virginia and the Carolinas to the north has proved to be a very important source of revenue to the combination of roads which hitherto has had the exclusive benefit of the all-rail business and the Baltimore & Ohio and Southern will doubtless obtain a considerable share of the traffic as the result of their enterprise.

THIRTY years is a long time to fight so painful a trouble as piles, but Jacob Mitchell, of Unionville, Pa., struggled that long before he tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which quickly and permanently cured him. It is equally effective in eczema and all skin affections. Charles R. Goetze, corner Market
